Judge Jackson Enjoins Him From Interference.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

PARKERSBURG, Aug. 5.—Upon application of James Sloan, Jr., Baltimore's stockholder in the Monongah Coke and Coal Company, made by Ex-Governor Fleming, his counsel, Judge Jackson, of the United States District Court, issued an injunction against Eugene V. Debs. The injunction restrains Debs and his associates from interfering with or molesting in any way the management of the property of the Monongah Company or their employees. The writ covers everything that can possibly be construed into an infringement of the rights of the corporation. It practically prevents all future agitation in the vicinity oi the Monongah mines.

Weyler Caught Him.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

NEW YORK, VIA NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5.—Cuban cigar manunfacturers are smuggling Sumatra cigar wrappers into Cuba in Maine logs, despite the protests and precautions of Gen. Weyler. He succeeded in capturing some of the tobacco and fined the manufacturers $40,000.

BROUGHT TO GREENSBORO.

Negroes Who Got Gay on an Excursion Brought to Justice.

Our readers remember the account THE TELEGRAM gave of a free-for-all fight at Pomona Monday afternoon between passengers on a negro excursion which was returning from Reidsville. It seems that the fun they had at Pomona did not satisfy their thirst for gore—at least two of them.

Up about Friendship two negroes from Guilford—John Neal and Peter Callen—went for each other, using a knife and a pair of knucks respectively. Before they could do each other any serious damage another passenger on board took a hand, and with the assistance of one or two others, held the scrappers until the train reached Winston, when they were turned over to an officer.

Sheriff Hoskins was wired to know what should be done with the negroes, and his instructions were that they be brought to Greensboro.

Policeman White, of Winston, arrived here with the prisoners this afternoon, and they were carried before Justice Pritchett for trial. Being found guilty of an affray with deadly weapons, and not being able to give bond, they were placed behind bars to await our next term of court.

Holton to Qualify.

S. L. Trogdon, clerk of the United States Court, received a telegram from A. E. Holton this afternoon stating that he would be down from Winston to qualify before Mr. Trogdon at 6:30 o'clock as U. S. District Attorney for the western district.

Another Excursion.

There seems to be no abatement of the excursion fever. The latest is one to be run from Raleigh to Asheville on the 10th of August by the Southern Railroad Company. They expect to run a first-class excursion and carry a large crowd.

The fare from Greensboro will be $3.50. This will be a splendid trip.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE MEETS.

Discuss the Best Methods of Obtaining Useful Members.

The membership committee of the Greensboro Industrial and Immigration Association held a meeting yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the office of the Southern Stock Mutual Insurance Company. The following members were present: C. E. Holton, G. W. Mebane, A. W. McAlister, C. G. Wright and W. E. Stone, secretary.

It was decided that a canvass of the city be made for new members. The great good the Industrial and Immigration Association has accomplished is too apparent to need any further argument of the necessity of every business man in Greensboro becoming a member. The association merits the untiring support of every man in Greensboro who has the growth and progress of our city at heart.

There are new openings continually developing in our midst and new opportunities being held out to our people. Through no source can we avail ourselves of these opportunities so well as through the Industrial and Immigration Association.

The Southern Tobacco Company.

It always gives us pleasure to note the success of any deserving home enterprise, and especially is this true in reference to the Southern Tobacco Company. This company was organized, if we mistake not, something more than a year ago. It is composed of home men—men of standing and and prominence—and the success it has achieved is not strange.

They manufacture some of the finest brands of both chewing and smoking tobacco on the market, and are building up a big trade.

They advertise "Touch-down" smoking tobacco in to-day's TELEGRAM. Read what they have to say about it and then try a package.

Investigating a Location.

Owing to the impetus given the proposed golf club by THE TELEGRAM, Messrs. Jordan, Cone, Settle and Daniel go out this afternoon to see if suitable grounds for links and a club house can be secured near the pumping station, three-quarters of a mile from the city.

Have You Paid Your Taxes?

If you have overlooked the matter of settling your taxes it might be well for you to read Sheriff Hoskins' card in the one-cent column. This is an important matter and should be attended to. It is necessary that your taxes be paid by the first day of August court, as a list of all delinquents is imperatively required to be filed with the judge for action.

Bloodhounds for Winston.

The Winston Journal says some of the city officers speak of buying a pair of bloodhounds and training them up. There is no doubt about the investment paying well, besides being of great aid in running down the many criminals in this section.

Wanted, a "Reasonable Package."

A South Carolina darkey walked into a Charlotte saloon this afternoon and in his usual humble way asked the saloon keeper, "Boss, has you any of these reasonable packages that a screw driver comes with."

At first the Charlotte man could not imagine what the darkey was trying to get at. It finally dawned upon him that his customer wanted some rum of the original package design. He was given to understand that this was North Carolina and that the dispensary had not as yet gone into effect and that the "reasonable package" with the screw-driver attachment was not in the order of things up this way.—Charlotte News.

Statesville is to have a system of water works and sewerage to cost $50,000.

SOUTHERN VARNISH COMPANY.

Another One of the Enterprises That Marks Our Growth.

One of the enterprises with which our people are, perhaps, not very well acquainted, because of its general nature and quiet business methods, is the Southern Varnish Company. This company located here in 1896, Mr. York, of Randolph county, being the leading spirit in the business. The factory is located on South Elm just outside of the corporate limits of the city. The firm is capitalized at $8,000 and employed a force of twelve men in its factory. The factory has a capacity of fifteen barrels per day and has no difficulty in disposing of its entire output; in fact the factory is now several weeks behind with orders and is running extra time to catch up.

The company keeps no men on the road, but disposes of its products entirely by price list. It sells its varnishes and in every State from Maryland to Missouri, where there are furniture or carriage factories. The bulk of its goods is sold to factories direct, without intermediary wholesalers. It supplies such large furniture establishments as the J. H. Conrad Chair and Parlor Furniture Company, of St. Louis, which gets all its varnish from the Southern Varnish Co. The White-Reckel Furniture Company, of New York, also uses their high grade varnish exclusively. This company is by no means without honor in its own country, since the local Furniture Company and the Eagle Company, of High Point, use its goods, and everybody knows your neighbor is the last man to recognize your virtues.

The company gets the gums used in the manufacture of its varnishes from New York, its linseed oil from Richmond and its turpentine from Eastern North Carolina. The company has its office and storerooms on South Elm, next to the Southern Express Company. It handles furniture, as a side line, exchanging varnish for it with companies that are large customers. As the tailor believes that "the clothes make the man," so the Southern Varnish Company believe that the varnish makes the furniture.

There is a pretty old story to the effect that the reason for always taking the right side of the road, when meeting any one, must be sought far back in history. In the days when every man carried shield and sword it was necessary to be always on the lookout for the attack of a possible enemy. Since a man carried his shield on his left arm he naturally passed to the right to have it between him and sudden danger. And so we pass by on the right even to this day, or are supposed to, so great is the power and tenacity of custom. As a rule, one may drive our roads for years without ever having cause to complain of those whom he meets on them. The ordinary man on the highway pulls to one side, giving the other half of the road, as a pure matter of course. Occasionally one meets an exception but it is unusual.

If any man imagine that this is all pure courtesy let him mount a wheel and attempt to ride through the streets of the city or along the country roads and he will learn how grievously he is mistaken; that it is not courtesy at all but pure necessity; he will be forced to the conclusion that the ordinary individual would not turn aside at all if he were sure he could make the other fellow do all the turning. He yields part of the way because he may have a smash else.

When he meets a bicyclist the case is entirely different. He has nothing to fear from the impact of a wheel and he knows the rider dare not run into him, so he obeys the injunction of the familiar jingle, and turns neither to the right nor left. The result is the wheelman has to do all the turning, and at times that is decidedly disagreeable, not to say dangerous. We saw a man in our city, who had the outward seeming of a gentleman, driving along a by street which the rain had rendered impassable for a wheel outside of a beaten path in the middle. By turning aside a few feet the lady could have passed without difficulty, yet he deliberately kept on his course, with the result that the young lady was forced to turn aside where the mud was too deep for a wheel to run, and she dismounted in it while the man drove by in state.

The bicycle is as much a vehicle as the carriage. It has the same rights in the highway. The cyclist may claim his share of that part of the highway which is most passable on the same grounds that the driver would. To refuse it to him, because he cannot run into a carriage, is merely gross discourtesy. Of course wheelmen meet people who show them the courtesy of the road, but they are refreshing exceptions.

There are plenty of people who actually still regard it as an impertinence for one to ride a wheel. They have a prejudice against the wheel which is none the less strong because it is without all foundation in reason. To this class of people it is, of course, useless to speak. Prejudice and courtesy have never been speaking acquaintances. But there is a larger class, who mean no discourtesy at all, but are not riders themselves and therefore imagine that the stones and gullies that cumber the earth in rich profusion along the road side fall easy victims to the pneumatic tire.

A simple question to any one of the six hundred cyclists in Greensboro would evoke a different answer.

On the main streets the wheelman must necessarily take his chances because of the number both of bicycles and teams. There are certain negro drivers, however, that show a criminal recklessness. Such cases should be called to the attention of the police or the liverymen who employ the driver.

THOSE good people who believe that in public sentiment is to be found a remedy for every evil of the social body, should waste a little thought on the history of prize-fighting in this country. For the last decade it has been denounced by all the organs through which public opinion may express itself. Add yet, despite pulpit, press, platform and legislature, the mill continues to be pulled off just so often as two pugilist can be found who will give up the more arduous contest of wind-jamming for the bout with gloves, and a club can be found to offer enough money.

Thus Mahsr and Sharkey will punch each others heads for the delectation of the Knickerbocker Club of San Francisca—and $20,000.

IF TAMMANY HALL had forced Mr. Richard Croker to divide the sag, it would not have a mortgage of $143,000 hanging over its historic roof and Mr. Croker would have a few thoroughbreds less in his racing stud. Evidently Tammany has fallen on evil days. What a difference in the morning from the time when it held a mortgage on New York City.

THE predicament of the Powers who are taking a hand in the Gracco-Turkish muddle suggests irresistably the case of the old Dutchman who caught the catamount, and then called his son John to help him "turn it loose."

THE Treasury Department has decided that calf skins are "hides of cattle." The supply of "hides of cattle," after the next congressional election, is likely to have a bearish effect on the market.

MR. WOOTON'S ABLE DEFENSE

REPLIES TO CHARGES MADE BY PRIEST PRICE IN "TRUTH."

The Order's Position is Explained---It is Not an Oath-Bound Secret Society.

To the Editor of "Truth," Raleigh, N. C.:

My attention has been called to an editorial appearing in the July number of your paper, in which you speak of the Jr. O. U. A. M. as an "Oath-bound Secret Society," that "seeks to fight the Catholic Church, to debar Catholics on account of their religion from political privileges, and to boycott them in various covert and insidious ways." You further charge that it is an "Oath-bound secret political organization," and that its existence is in violation of the laws of the State, and that its members are "liable to arrest, fines and imprisonment." You quote the law referred to at some length, and assure the members that it will be "applied." Now, Mr. Editor, has it ever occurred to you that a religious journal calling itself Truth, and publishing as its motto, "The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," should be careful not to publish anything detrimental to an individual or an organization unless the statements made were known to be absolutely true. You have made a sweeping indictment of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and in many instances it seems that you have made your conclusions do duty as facts. I feel that however pure may have been your motive, and however sincere may have been your intention, you have done the order of which I am the chief officer in this State an injustice and an injury, and I ask that you will give me space in your paper to answer the charges which you have made, and to place the order in its proper light before your readers. The charge that is calculated to do the greatest harm to the order is your statement that it is an "oath-bound secret political organization."

Now, Mr. Editor, I take it that you are not a member of the order, and hence you do not know this statement to be a fact. Your own statement that it is "secret" and "oath-bound" tells you in stronger terms than I can that you could not know that it was political unless you had penetrated the inner circle and taken the degrees and obligations yourself. I think I have a right to presume that you have not done this, and hence when you make this most damaging charge against the order, you state a conclusion and not a fact within your own knowledge. But you say that the Junior American Mechanic, an official organ of the order, states that "in the strictest sense we are a national political organization." Now, if this is where you get your information, and you wanted to be fair and publish the whole truth, according to your motto, why did you not publish the whole paragraph? Why did you publish only a part of one sentence? The part of the sentence you quote makes the order appear as some great political machine; when the fact is that it is no such thing, and the complete sentence disproves any such idea. The complete sentence, which is an extract from our declaration of principles, reads as follows:

"In the strictest sense we are a National Political Organization, but we oppose with unanimity the slightest taint of partisanship."

Is it possible that in an honest effort to inform yourself as to our principles that you read only half of this sentence and stopped, and passed judgment upon the order? If this be so, perhaps it is only your own haste and carelessness that has stired your virtuous soul and not the principles of the order. It is evident that you did not read all of the declarations of principles or you would not have said that a part of our work was to fight the Catholic church, etc., when the declaration of principles "guarantees to every man the liberty of worshiping God according to the dictates of his own conscience," and further declares that it will "give every assistance to protect all in the exercise of this liberty." Our members worship God as they please and vote as they please. The order is non-political and non-sectarian. It has a declaration of principles, however, which I hope all its members love and subscribe to. The order tries to uphold these principles, and if in the exercise of this right any one gets hit, it is not because we wanted to hit any particular individual or organization, but simply because some particular individual or organization collided with our principles. No other church or church organ so far as I know has ever complained of the work that we are doing in the State. In fact many ministers and many papers have commended our work. You are the editor of a Catholic magazine, published in the interest of the Catholic church in this State, and you have been the first man to hollo. Since you have holloed the presumption is that you have been hit. Now let's see where we hit you:

We believe in restricted immigration, and view with alarm the landing upon our shores of the ignorant, vicious and lawless criminals of the Old World.—Do you object to this?

We believe in public schools and compulsory education; we believe that the teaching should be in the English language, to the end that future generations may be able to take their places in the ranks of our country's workers education in the history, customs and manners of Americans.—Do you object to this?

We are willing that all men shall worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences, but we object to the interference of any church, no matter under what name it may exist, in the temporal affairs of this country.—Do you object to this?

We believe that the Bible should be read in our public schools, but that sectarianism should not be taught; we believe that our children should be educated in its teachings, but that no dogma or creed should be taught at the same time.—Do you object to this?

We believe that patriotism and love of country should be instilled into the hearts of our children, and that our flag, the symbol of all that makes a home for us, should be placed upon every school-house, as an object lesson.—Do you object to this?

Do you object to our assisting Americans in obtaining employment? Do you object to our encouraging Americans in business? Do you object to our establishing and maintaining a sick and funeral fund? Do you object to our providing for the widows and orphans of our deceased brothers? If you object to none of these then you are in full sympathy with the the purposes of the order, and your only offense has been that of turning your guns upon the order before you knew what it was. If you do object to any of our principles or objects; point them out and we will let a discriminating public decide between us.

Very respectfully.
W. T. WOOTTTON,
State Councellor.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems of Truth Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Success lies at the further end of the road of sorrow, struggle, disappointment and anguish.—Rev. Dr. Lee, Presbyterian, Cincinnati.

A Greater Thing.

It is a greater thing to feel a truth than it is to be able to prove that the truth is true.—Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, Presbyterian, New York.

Work.

Some live for money, some work for it, but man should also work for the sake of work. If he does that he is a man whether he works in a street or builds an empire.—Rev. Heber Newton, Episcopal, New York.

Everyday Miracles.

The growth of an ear of corn is essentially as remarkable, but more common, than the turning of water into wine or the multiplication of loaves and fishes.—Rev. William Rader, Congregationalist, San Francisco.

Marriages of the Wrong Kind.

Marriages based on beauty and vanity only, upon wealth and position without consulting reason, religion or love, are sure to be followed by disaster, divorce and death.—Rev. Madison C. Peters, Reformed, New York.

Poor Philosophy.

It is poor philosophy to accentuate the bad; it is unwise to dwell upon and magnify evil; it reveals a sad want of real faith to fear that the good will be overcome and perish from the earth.—Rev. Dr. Thomas, People's Church, Chicago.

Badly Fenced.

I have observed that if you let down the bars at one place in a fence around a ten acre lot all the cattle will escape. So with a man whose character is fenced about except in one place. Leave one place open and all the virtues will run out.—Rev. J. H. Ecob, Baptist, Denver.

Conflicting Forces.

In our great national life the struggle is sharp today between the spirit that would make of this country simply a great material power without great moral force and character and the nobler spirit that would hold these material powers as servants to the higher life. — Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts at St. Louis.

Newspapers That Should Be Boycotted.

I know the press caters to public taste, that it prints what the people read and demand and that some of the editors do not approve of the scenes the papers describe. All such indecent sheets should be boycotted and kept forever from the home. This will have its influence in changing sensationalism to conservatism.—Rev. W. W. West, Baptist, Pittsburg.

Monasticism and Missions.

The ideal of monasticism, or the absolute renunciation of self, will always have attractions for a class of noble and heroic souls. This devotion to a sublime standard is the only motive that can sustain the missionary spirit in the inevitable hardships and sacrifices that attend the preaching of the gospel to the heathen.—Father Joseph V. O'Connor, Catholic, Philadelphia.

Two Deaths.

There are two deaths. When death is quick, it is not difficult to believe that there is a life beyond. But the death which is like the sunset, a fading from brightness and glory to a cheerless gray, is that which discourages. Thus we see mind and soul and honor die in those we care for. "We mourn death less for what it takes away than what it leaves behind."—Rev. Dr. Rainsford, Episcopal, New York.

Simple but Inexplicable Things.

I ask you, Is there anybody that can tell why A is A? You make fun of religion and you strut up and down, and you talk about the preachers being dogmatic. I tell you, you are more dogmatic than any preacher. Now, just tell me why A is A. And that is the first letter of the alphabet. Can you tell me why B is B? Why is A not Z? Who can tell these things? Nobody.—Rev. John Mathews, Methodist, St. Louis.

This Era of Peace.

This is an era of peace, and yet the largest employer of labor in the world is said to be Herr Frederick Alfred Krupp of Essen, Germany, who has more than 25,000 men upon the pay rolls of his establishment, wherein are made cannon and other munitions of war. The most powerful traffic in America is that in intoxicating liquors. Thus on both sides of the Atlantic the works of death still lift their heads proud above the works of sustenance and help.—Rev. Frank Crane, Methodist, Chicago.

"Divine Healers."

The tenets of faith healers are all contrary to reason, Scripture and universal experience. The atonement does not avail in this world for all the consequences of sin. Sickness will never be conquered in this world. Look at poverty, crime and accident—all the results of sin, but all will continue to the end of time. If divine healers are right, then remedies, like vaccination, and all the beneficent ministries of physicians, nurses, and the uses of anæsthetics and surgery, are the works of satan.—Rev. Alfred Kummer, Methodist, Oakland, Cal.

Nature's Persistent Question.

Nature is an effect demanding an explanation, and as an effect it cannot be itself the cause, as evincing adaptation it cannot be accounted for by chance. Kepler, called one day from his meditations to dinner, as he sat with his wife eating a salad, said to her, "Do you think that if from the creation plates, leaves of lettuce, grains of salt, drops of vinegar and oil and fragments of hard boiled eggs were floating in space in all directions and without order chance could assemble them today to a salad?" His wife, not seeing the humor, but much to the purpose, replied, "Certainly not such a good one or so well seasoned as this."—Rev. Hugh Johnson, Methodist, Washington.

PHIPPS—RICE.

A Beautiful Marriage Celebrated in Westminster Church Last Evening.

That was a beautiful marriage celebrated in Westminster Presbyterian church last evening at 7:30 o'clock, when Mr. James M. Phipps led to Hymen's altar Miss Leta Rice, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rice, of Pearson street.

The church was darkened and the gas-light reflected a lovely scene from the beautiful and tasteful decorations of evergreen and potted flowers.

The bridal party marched up the aisle to the sweet and inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered in a charming manner by the accomplished Miss Lula Brown. They were met at the altar by the Rev. Rosser A. Brown, of Waycross, Ga., who performed the ceremony with ease and grace.

Mr. W. Theo. Williams was best man, with Miss Sarah Witherspoon as bridesmaid. The ushers were: Messrs. W. E. Phipps, W. A. Murray, Chalmers McLean and Will Brown.

The bride was becomingly attired in a beautiful going-away gown of soft gray material, while the bridesmaid was beautifully dressed in pure white. The groom, groomsman and ushers were attired in the conventional black. The bridal party left on the 7:37 train for Atlanta, Chattanooga and Nashville, and were followed by showers of rice and the best wishes of a host of friends.

Glenn has established a paying business, and it was only on account of the pressure of other matters that he was forced to give it up.

AT THE GOSPEL TENT.

Mr. Lee Preaches Justification and Regeneration.

Mr. Lee took his text last evening from John 3:3—"Except a man be born again he cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven." He preached at some length on the two basic principals of Christianity, justification and regeneration, explaining the difference between the two doctrines and impressing their importance to the well rounded Christian character.

In many respects we think this was the strongest sermon the evangelist has yet preached. He held the undivided attention of the vast audience for nearly an bour, and at the close of the sermon a great many asked for prayers. Several professed conversion at the after meeting.

The sermonic Bible readings Mr. Lee is holding every morning are well attended, and much interest is being taken in them by Christian workers.

There will be serviees again this evening at 8:30.
